

DELHI/NCR: THE HEART OF INDIA

The National Capital Region (NCR) is a designation for the conurbation or metropolitan area which encompasses the entire National Capital Territory of Delhi. This includes New Delhi, as well as urban areas surrounding it. During the period April 2000 -November 2014, the National Capital Region (NCR), received $ 45.77 billion Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) and accounted for 19 % of the country's total FDI. Its Per Capita GDP (at PPP) was at $6,511 during 2013-14 fiscal, making it one of the richest cities in India. The service industry contributes the largest chunk of the State Domestic Product (SDP) - about 70%, followed by manufacturing (25.2%) and agriculture (3.85%). The key industries include Information Technology, Telecommunications, Hotels, Media, Banking and Tourism.
